

PARTY TIME?

The year-end brings with it a host of temptations and invitations to sin. Matric Balls, office year-end parties and the like tempt us with the illusion of merriment and fun.

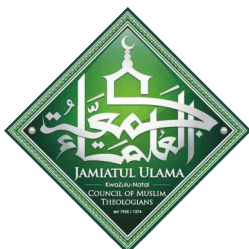

Besides the manifest detriment to our Imaan and hereafter, there are other sinister evils that lurk in the background. The abuse that is commonly perpetrated at such events is horrifying and shocking. There are many who attend as predators with malicious intent. Spiked drinks and the rape that follows has become a norm at such events.

The situation has become so evil that let alone women, even teenage boys are drugged and abused at these parties. What joy and fun will be left, when we find ourselves, or worse our children traumatised and shattered at the hospital or the police station?

Local Ulama have had to deal with situations of raped and intoxicated young Muslim women at police stations, with their parents no where to be found.

Our humble plea is that for Allah's sake, cancel all plans to attend any such gathering, and prevent our children from the same. Every individual should ponder over death and its unpredictability. Would it not be the ultimate failure and disgrace if we had to meet our death in an environment of sin and evil?
