

HAS THIS TIME ARRIVED ?

Sayyidina Abdullah ibn Masood Radhiyallaahu Anhu once stated,

“You people are now living in an age when many Ulama are present, and when there is a scarcity of men proficient and skilled in the Quraanic recitation. The instructions of the Quraan-e-Kareem are very much noted but not so much attention is given to the letters thereof. This is a time when few are the beggars and numerous are the givers, when lengthy Salaah are performed and short sermons are delivered; when men give priority and preference to deeds of righteousness over their desires and passions.”

“But soon such an age will dawn when few will be the Ulama and numerous the proficient readers of the Quraan, when more concern will be shown for the letters and words of the Quraan than to its injunctions; when many will be the beggars and few the givers, when sermons will be lengthy and the Salaah short, when men will give priority for their desires over deeds of righteousness.” (Jami)
